

University's/organization's commitment to cost-share a Fulbright grant for 2025-26

The Fulbright Finland Foundation provides grants to Finnish citizens to pursue studies, research, and professional development projects in the United States.

Some of the grants provided by the Fulbright Finland Foundation are funded together with Finnish higher education institutions or organizations. These are called cost-share grants. These co-funded grants provide higher education institutions or organizations with diverse opportunities to advance the international mobility of their students, researchers, and staff.

Applicants with an institutional affiliation must attach this document completed by their home unit or head of organization to the application even if the applicant's home institution will not share costs of the grant.

MCPD applicants with an institutional affiliation must define their home organization's view on cost-sharing the ASLA-Fulbright Mid-Career Professional Development Grant. Since there is a limited amount of MCPD grant funding available, cost-sharing with the applicant's home institution/organization can play an important role. However, the ability to cost-share is not a requirement for applying for the grant.
